Academic Session 2026-2027

Online applications are invited from eligible intending candidates for admission into the two year M. Tech. in Petroleum Technology (Petroleum Exploration and Production) programme of Dibrugarh University for the academic session 2026-2027.

PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHTS

- The Department of Petroleum Technology was established in 1969 at Dibrugarh University with an aim to produce technically qualified human resources for oil & gas industries. The M.Tech programme in Petroleum Technology (Petroleum Exploration and Production) is duly approved by UGC and AICTE.
- The Department of Petroleum Technology maintains a strong industry–academia interface with leading oil exploration and production companies. Field training is conducted every semester in nearby oil industries, providing students with practical exposure. Dissertation and project work are undertaken on relevant industry-oriented topics under the joint supervision of departmental faculty and industry experts. In addition, guest lectures are organized regularly by inviting subject specialists from organizations such as OIL, ONGC, BCPL, NRL, as well as other research and academic institutions across the country.
- Internship programmes are organized for students in collaboration with oil industries such as OIL, ONGC, BCPL, and NRL, as well as with foreign universities like Asia Pacific University of Technology & Innovations (APU), Malaysia, under the PM-USHA scheme, in alignment with the NEP 2020 of the Government of India. Additionally, International Association of Drilling

Aswath

Contractors (IADC) examinations are conducted regularly with the assistance of APU, Malaysia.

- ONGC and OIL provide one-time fellowships of ₹60,000 and ₹50,000, respectively, to the first and second rank holders (up to the 2nd semester) of the M.Tech. in Petroleum Technology (Petroleum Exploration & Production) programme.
- Internship programmes are organized for students in collaboration with oil industries such as OIL, ONGC, BCPL, and NRL, as well as with foreign universities like Asia Pacific University of Technology & Innovations (APU), Malaysia, under the PM-USHA scheme, in alignment with the NEP 2020 of the Government of India. In addition, International Association of Drilling Contractors (IADC) examinations are conducted regularly with the assistance of APU, Malaysia.
